After choosing a female cat, doctors surgically placed a tiny transmitter in her chest, along with a microphone in her ear and an antenna running along her backbone. Performing the operation was not that hard. However, training the cat proved to be quite difficult because they are such stubborn animals. Finally, after five years of training, the CIA concluded their animal agent was ready. So, they sent her to record a conversation between two men from the Soviet Union. Sadly, the cat was hit by a passing taxi after taking only a few steps. As a result of this unsuccessful experiment, the idea of using cats was abandoned.

- ① The operation to place the devices in the cat proved extremely difficult.
- ② The transmitter was placed in the cat's ear.
- ③ Several male cats were chosen and trained for the mission.
- ④ The cat was sent to record a conversation between two French officials.
- ⑤ Five years of training passed before the CIA concluded the cat was ready.

One tradition found in many ancient cultures is burying the dead with things they might need in the afterlife, such as food, weapons, and clothing. Archaeologists in western Norway, however, have found an unexpected item in a grave that dates back to the Early Iron Age — a board game. They believe that the board game was an indication that the dead person was wealthy. This is because board games were a symbol of social status and power in ancient civilizations. Only someone who was educated and didn't need to work could spend time playing them.

- ① Ancient people never buried food or weapons with the dead.
- ② The grave in western Norway dates back to the Early Iron Age.
- ③ The board game was discovered in eastern Norway.
- ④ The dead person in the grave is believed to have been poor.
- ⑤ Board games were mainly enjoyed by people who had to work hard.

다음 글의 내용을 한 문장으로 요약하고자 한다. 빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?

If you've ever been inside a shopping mall, you probably noticed that there were no clocks or windows. The reason for this is to create a change in our perception of time, also known as a "temporal distortion." You have likely experienced this phenomenon while playing video games. It felt like you were playing for minutes, but it was actually hours. This is because the gaming environment makes it difficult to tell how much time has passed. The same thing happens in malls. We end up spending more time shopping, which leads the brain to become exhausted from making too many decisions. This leaves us more susceptible to poor decision-making, causing us to make bad purchases. This happens because malls are cleverly designed to overwhelm us, pushing us toward making impulsive purchases.

Malls are designed to (A)_____ shoppers' sense of time, so people shop longer, become mentally tired, and end up making (B)_____ purchases.

- ① (A) sharpen — (B) careful
- ② (A) distort — (B) unplanned
- ③ (A) respect — (B) unplanned
- ④ (A) distort — (B) profitable
- ⑤ (A) sharpen — (B) unplanned

When Harriet Beecher Stowe published the novel Uncle Tom's Cabin in 1852, it had a significant effect on the United States. At that time, slavery was still legal in the southern part of the country. The book's anti-slavery message made people in the Northern states begin to realize just how bad slavery was. This was partly because Stowe wrote in a very personal, informal style that enabled readers to empathize with the slaves in her novel. Stowe's novel had a stronger effect than newspaper articles and political speeches. Nine years after Uncle Tom's Cabin was published, the American Civil War began, which eventually led to the end of slavery.

- ① Slavery was already illegal in the southern part of the country in 1852.
- ② Uncle Tom's Cabin was published in 1852.
- ③ Stowe wrote the novel in a distant, formal style.
- ④ Stowe's novel was written to defend slavery.
- ⑤ Newspaper articles had a stronger effect on people than Stowe's novel.
