❶ In today's marketing and advertising-soaked world, people cannot escape brands. ❷ The younger they are when they start using a brand or product, the more likely they are to keep using it for years to come. ❸ But that's not the only reason companies are aiming their marketing and advertising at younger consumers. ❹ As James U. McNeal, a professor at Texas A&M University, puts it, "Seventy-five percent of spontaneous food purchases can be traced to a nagging child. ❺ And one out of two mothers will buy a food simply because her child requests it. ❻ To trigger desire in a child is to trigger desire in the whole family." ❼ In other words, kids have power over spending in their households, they have power over their grandparents and they have power over their babysitters. ❽ That's why companies use tricks to manipulate their minds.

❾ Children can be (A) _____ in marketing in and of themselves due to their ability to (B) _____ their parents' purchases.

→ ❾ 어린이들은 그들의 부모의 구매를 통제하는 능력 때문에 원래 그리고 자발적으로 마케팅에 있어서 영향력이 있을 수 있다.

빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?

❶ In the late 1970s, Douglas Adams wrote his science fiction novel, subsequently a movie, The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy.
❷ In it, he identifies one problem facing space travelers: the inability to communicate clearly with one another because of the wide variety of languages spoken. ❸ Yet a little creature that came to be called Babel Fish evolved that, when placed in the ear, would automatically and clearly translate what a person was saying into the listener's own language. ❹ Surprisingly, rather than helping relationships among different races by promoting clear understanding, the end results of using Babel Fish were some of the bloodiest wars known to the universe. ❺ Once people clearly understood one another and assigned similar meanings to words, this clarity sharply defined their differences and led to war.

❻ The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy shows that the

→ '❻ 은하수를 여행하는 히치하이커를 위한 안내서'는 Babel Fish를 사용함으로써 인한 언어 장벽의 제거가 갈등을 유발하는 데 일조했음을 보여 준다.

❶ Imagine two students examining their grades on a math test. ❷ One student tries hard but rarely gets a grade higher than a "C." ❸ The other is the top math student in the school; she always gets an "A." ❹ On this particular test, however, both students receive a "B." ❺ These students might use the same words in discussing their grades, but with a remarkably different tone. ❻ The first student would likely deliver the sentence "I got a 'B' on the math test" with some surprise and happiness in her voice. ❼ She would sound excited and hopeful. ❽ The second student's tone would indicate that she was not happy and suggest disappointment or worry. ❾ Both students used the same words, but they did not mean the same thing. ⓫ The different tones mark the differences in the students' feelings.

빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?

① One study brought in a large group of students to do “market research on high-tech headphones.” ② The students were told that the researchers wanted to test how well the headphones worked while they were in motion. ③ Following the songs, the researchers played an argument about how the university’s tuition should be raised from $587 per semester to $750 per semester. ④ One group of students had been told to move their heads up and down throughout the music and the speaking. ⑤ Another group was told to move their heads from side to side. ⑥ A last group was told to make no movements at all. ⑦ After “testing the headsets,” the students were asked to fill out a questionnaire about not only the headsets, but also the university’s tuition. ⑧ Those nodding their heads up and down (yes motion) overall rated a jump in tuition as favorable. ⑨ Those shaking their heads side to side (no motion) overall wanted the tuition to be lowered. ⑩ Those who had not moved their heads didn’t really seem to be persuaded one way or the other.

빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?

① People have a need to maintain an image of self-integrity.

You'd think that [whenever / whatever] more than one person makes a decision, they'd draw on [collective / individual] wisdom. Surely, a group of minds can do better than an [collective / individual]. Unfortunately, that's not always the case. The wisdom of a crowd partly relies on the fact [which / that] all judgments are [independent / dependent]. If people guess the weight of a cow and put it on a slip of paper, or estimate the likelihood of a revolution in Pakistan and enter it into a website, the average of their views is highly [inaccurate / accurate]. But, surprisingly, if those people talk about these questions in a group, the answers that they come to are increasingly [incorrect / correct]. More specifically, researchers have found an effect of group polarization. [However / Whatever] bias people may have as individuals gets multiplied when they discuss things as a group. If individuals lean slightly toward [taking / taken] a risk, the group leaps toward it.

(When people dependently work with others, the wisdom of the crowd often turns into the stupidity of the group.)

In today's marketing and advertising-soaked world, people cannot escape brands. The younger they are when they start using a brand or product, the more likely they are to keep using it for years to come. But that's not the only reason companies are aiming their marketing and advertising at younger consumers. As James U. McNeal, a professor at Texas A&M University, puts it, "Seventy-five percent of spontaneous food purchases can be traced to a nagging child. And one out of two mothers will buy a food simply because her child requests it. To trigger desire in a child is to trigger desire in the whole family." In other words, kids have power over spending in their households, they have power over their grandparents and they have power over their babysitters. That's why companies use tricks to manipulate their minds.

Surprisingly, rather than helping relationships among different races by promoting clear understanding, the end results of using Babel Fish were some of the bloodiest wars known to the universe. Once people clearly understood one another and assigned similar meanings to words, this clarity sharply defined their differences and led to war.

Imagine two students examining their grades on a math test.

- (A) These students might use the same words in discussing their grades, but with a remarkably different tone. The first student would likely deliver the sentence "I got a 'B' on the math test" with some surprise and happiness in her voice.
- (B) One student tries hard but rarely gets a grade higher than a "C." The other is the top math student in the school; she always gets an "A." On this particular test, however, both students receive a "B."
- (C) Both students used the same words, but they did not mean the same thing. The different tones mark the differences in the students' feelings.
- (D) She would sound excited and hopeful. The second student's tone would indicate that she was not happy and suggest disappointment or worry.

One study brought in a large group of students to do "market research on high-tech headphones." (A) 학생들은 그들이 움직이고 있는 동안에 헤드폰이 얼마나 잘 작동하는지를 연구자들이 시험해 보고 싶어 한다는 말을 들었다. Following the songs, the researchers played an argument about how the university's tuition should be raised from $587 per semester to $750 per semester. One group of students had been told to move their heads up and down throughout the music and the speaking. Another group was told to move their heads from side to side. A last group was told to make no movements at all. After "testing the headsets," (B) 학생들은 헤드셋에 관한 것뿐만 아니라 대학교의 수업료에 관한 설문지도 작성하라는 요청을 받았다. Those nodding their heads up and down (yes motion) overall rated a jump in tuition as favorable. Those shaking their heads side to side (no motion) overall wanted the tuition to be lowered. Those who had not moved their heads didn't really seem to be persuaded one way or the other.

People have a need to maintain an image of self-integrity. In an early demonstration of this, Steele (1975) threatened women's self-images by telling them that, as members of their community, it was common knowledge that they either were cooperative with community projects, uncooperative with community projects, or not concerned about driving safely. (A fourth, control group received no information relevant to their self-images.) Two days later, a fellow researcher called each woman, asking her to list every food item in her kitchen to help a food cooperative. 이를 전 자신들이 비협조적이라거나 부주의한 운전자라고 들었던 여성들은 나머지 집단의 여성들보다 그 연구원을 거의 두 배 더 많이 도와주었다. Steele explains this effect in terms of the women's motive to restore their self-concepts as cooperative people.

In today's marketing and advertising-soaked world, people cannot escape brands. The young they are when they start using a brand or product, the more likely they are to keep to use it for years to come. But what's not the only reason companies are aiming their marketing and advertising at younger consumers. As James U. McNeal, a professor at Texas A&M University, putting it, "Seventy-five percent of spontaneous food purchases can be traced to a nagging child. And one out of two mothers will buy a food simply because of her child requests it. To trigger desire in a child is to trigger desire in the whole family." In other words, kids have power over spending in their households, they have power over their grandparents and they have power over their babysitters. That's because companies use tricks to manipulate their minds.

You'd think that whatever more than one person makes a decision, they'd draw on collective wisdom. Surely, a group of minds can do better than an individual. Unfortunately, that's not always the case. The wisdom of a crowd partly relies on the fact which all judgments are independent. If people guess the weight of a cow and put it on a slip of paper, or estimating the likelihood of a revolution in Pakistan and enter it into a website, the average of their views are highly accurate. But, surprisingly, if those people talk about these questions in a group, the answers that they come to is increasingly incorrect. More specifically, researchers have found an effect of group polarization. Whenever bias people may have as individuals gets multiplied when they discuss things as a group. If individuals lean slightly toward taking a risk, the group leaps toward it.
